He said the reason he had not confessed was because Leon's Brother, LaSalle Brown had so many good friends that as long as they did not know the truth about Brown, not being in the robbery, that he and Lafon could get a break and have life like the other three boys and after they get their sentence then they intended to make a statement like Dixon and Jenkins, then his brother could get him out of the pen. He told me that if a reprieve did not come he would tell the warden the truth.
